

Sports of 1924

By FEG MURRAY

"Athrock Wins Cage Tilt"

Nick Athrock, the well-known basketball comedian, is touring the country with a professional basketball team, the "Holly Majors." Since Nick has complained that ordinary basketball play is too complicated for him to understand, "Sports of 1924" submits the accompanying chart illustrating a simple, but effective play, especially well adapted for correspondence school teams.

The play calls for a backward tip-off by No. 3, the center, to No. 6, the offensive guard. He can be made all the more effective by sticking his finger in his opponent's eye, as he dashes for the ball. When about three strides away from the opposing guard, he presents his back and shakes hands with forward No. 1, stealthily giving him the ball as he does so. No. 1 throws a long pass to No. 4, who is hiding in the bleachers disguised as an usher, and he climbs up over the back of the basket and grounds the ball from the aerial. Score—Athrock, 1—Opponents, minus 11.

SAYS TALENTED YOUNG MEN NOW TURN TO BASEBALL

(By the Associated Press)

St. Louis, Feb. 10. — Boys who were too young to enter the World war are going to be the major league baseball stars within a year or two, in the opinion of Judge Mark Fuchs, one of the owners of the Braves.

"There will be some careful scouting for this material," he said, "because the talents are crowded with veterans who are finding that."

"I believe the time is fast approaching when there will be many Frankies in baseball. The war shut out the normal flow of talented young men in the major leagues, but now many of these boys who were too young to go are coming along."

BINGHAMTON WINS BATTLE

Speedy Success County Outlets School Member of Ontario High School Basketball in Ending 25 to 11 Game Saturday Evening—Ohio Play Preliminary.

Although exciting their opponents in possession and forward, a fighting Ontario High school basketball team went down to defeat at the hands of the quietest representing Binghamton Central High school in the high school gymnasium Saturday evening by a score of 25 to 11. It was the first game lost by the Yellow and White quintet on the home floor this season but in the defeat there was no disgrace as the lads were working every minute. It was poor shooting, a lack characteristic of the work of the O. H. S. five in every game this year, which lost the game. Binghamton's floorwork dragged but the Blue and White basketballs had edge upon and took advantage of every scoring opportunity. The Ontario lads played the ball with uncanny precision and bewildering speed but missed easy shots time after time.

In the first quarter victory seemed certain for Coach Binghamton's men. Glen drew first blood after a pretty dribble the length of the floor. McGuinness added another basket a few minutes later with a beautiful shot following a dribble. The basket was the first made this season by an opponent of McGuinness, a Binghamton guard, who had held his man scoreless in nine straight games. The quarter ended with Ontario ahead by a score of 4 to 0.

Binghamton picked up in the second quarter and soon passed Ontario, never again to be headed. It was up and took, however, throughout the quarter, which ended with O. H. S. on the short end of a 12 to 8 score. In the second half Binghamton changed tactics from passwork and short shots to long attempts, at which the Blue and White clad youngsters were adept. They gradually widened the gap between their score and Ontario's in this half, allowing the O. H. S. quintet but two points while they added 11 to their total.

Binghamton played a man to man defense and this gave the stocky Binghamtonians a decided advantage over their much lighter opponents.

The game was well played from whistle to gun and the work of no one man stood out above that of his fellows. Every man on both teams played hard, clean basketball and to the teams as a whole should go the credit.

The Preliminary Contest.

The preliminary contest, between two girls' teams styling themselves the White and the Blue, resulted in a 12 to 10 victory for the former seated after a thrilling struggle. The first half ended with the Blue ahead, 12 to 1, and to even up the evident disparity between the playing of the two teams, M. Seager was switched from the Blue team to the white, D.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

GOLF

BEGINNERS—

THEY SHOULD KNOW THESE THINGS ABOUT THE GOLF AND GOLF.

Is there a tendency on the part of beginners to use the wrong too much—a muller, for instance, when the shot really calls for a bunker.

Answered by PHIL AUDIN

Medalist, British open championship; captain of British international golf team; member of that team for eight consecutive years. Winner of numerous foreign tournaments, including Manchester Guardian trophy.

Yes. The cause of that is that they have the confidence in the midiron and iron clubs. The majority of golfers are continually under-clubbing themselves, that is, they would prefer to play a full shot with any other club than take an easy one, with a brazier and spoon. The easiest way is to play with the correct club. One does not have to "press" to "get there." The midiron is about the easiest club to play, and the most effective if played correctly and well.

The teams were now more evenly matched and the last half was a desperate race for first honors, ending when Irene Brand tossed in the basket which won for the Whites.

A GROWING MENACE

One of the most alarming economic features of our present war-torn world is the large and increasing extent of waste land. The size of this unproductive area has grown to about two-thirds the area of our remaining virgin timber land. Within eight or ten years, perhaps sooner, the waste land in this country will be greater than our virgin timber acreage, says the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse.

Idle forest land is a rope around the neck of prosperity. Such land brings among many evils a reduction of property available for taxation and an increased tax burden on other property. This is shown by comparing the tax rate in counties largely agricultural with the tax rate in counties that were once forested but which have been denuded of their trees and have lost their lumber industries and the population they supported. The necessity for raising taxes does not disappear with the disappearance of the forests or the removal of the wood working industries. The tax burden is simply shifted by increasing the rate on the people and the properties that are forced to remain.

A continuous use of the forests is necessary to permanent property, not only of the town and county, in which the forests grow, but of the nation. Idle forest land is a menace to business, population and a high standard of society. When the chief support of a community disappears such as in the case of our shifting lumber industry the industrial and social life of that community is endangered. A migrating industry means an increase in the cost of living and unsettled economic conditions.

THE GUIDE POST—BY HENRY VANDYKE

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

By one of our understanding and knowledgeable statesmen is proclaimed—Feb. 23.

The name and fame of Abraham Lincoln have risen slowly but surely in the estimation of his own country and of all the nations of mankind. The emphasis that was at first put upon his humble birth, his early poverty, his lack of schooling, his hardships and humiliations gave a false impression of his real character and for a time obscured the greatness of the man.

He was not an uneducated man. By reading he brought himself in touch with the best of literature, especially the Bible.

By close contact and observation he learned to understand the thoughts and feelings of his fellow men.

By self discipline he obtained a superb mastery of his own mind and could use his powers of intuition and of reasoning with marvellous effect.

That is education.

He began as a rail splitter. He ended as a man who could split the tough barriers of political selfishness and cut the Gordian knot which bound our country to slavery and sin.

The name and fame of a common man would have pleased him. But remember, he was a common man with an uncommon soul.

He showed us the way and by showing us the way he saved the ship to save.

I want to say more new things about him and his life to remember his name.

HOME BUREAU THURSDAY

Will Be New Feature of Annual Farmers' Week at Oneonta, Which Opens Today.

Rhine Feb. 10. — "Home Bureau day" is a new feature of farmers' week at the State college this year. It will be observed on Thursday, February 14, afternoon and evening, as part of the Home-makers' conference in the School of Home Economics. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon, Mrs. G. Thomas Powell, president of the State Federation of Home Bureaus, will preside at the opening session. She will speak on "What the Home Bureau Means to My Community." Mrs. C. L. Lacey of Oneonta county will have for her topic "What the Home Bureau Means to Me." Mrs. Charles H. Lacey of Oneonta county will talk on "What the Home Bureau Means to My Country." Dean A. H. Mann, on "What the Home Bureau Means to the State"; and Miss Grace E. Fry, singer of the Federal Department of Agriculture on "What the Extension Service for Homemakers Means to the Nation."

The afternoon program will close with the presentation of the Home Bureau play, "And So I Turn My Clouds About," written by Elmer C. Howard of the Rochester Home Bureau and played by the East Lawn community unit of the Oneonta county Home Bureau. This play sets forth the relation of the Home Bureau service to home life as it is viewed in prospect by a young girl who finds her new home life more interesting than her school life. Children from the Oneonta schools will take part in the dances and singing.

In the evening, at 7, Home Bureau members and any others who wish to attend will have dinner together in the main dining room of Hiley hall. For the after-dinner program, Mrs. G. Thomas Powell will act as toastmistress. The speakers include Professor William Adams, Irene Rich, president of Home Bureau Managers; Ruth Sawyer Durand, author; H. H. Edwards of the Cornell Christian association; Mrs. A. E. Briggs, honorary president of the Home Bureau federation; and Professor Martha Van Rensselaer, who will tell of the restoration of homes in Belgium and France.

A SIMPLE LIFE SAVING METHOD

Some years ago I was taken out to the life saving motorboat on the bay, where the police officers were attempting to resuscitate a woman by means of the pulmonary. She had been in the water nearly an hour, and unfortunately we were unable to bring her around.

I questioned the officers and found that they had used the usual methods of getting the water out of the lungs before applying the pulmonary.

The thing that struck me was the great advance that had been made in the last few years in restoring the apparently drowned and suffocated. A few years ago about four people were required to look after such a case. One would apply artificial respiration by moving the arms from the sides of the body up over the head; another would rub the hands and feet. Still another would take hold of the tongue by means of a handkerchief, and move it in and out to induce breathing.

A fourth would go for the physician.

Now but one person is needed and even without the aid of a pulmonary, hundreds are restored to life by means of what is known as the Schafer method.

The patient is laid on his abdomen, face to one side. The operator kneels across the patient, facing his head, and applies his hands to the lower part of the back at the short ribs.

He then presses or thrusts the weight of his body slowly on this point, thus squeezing on the chest and expelling any air.

He then raises his body and relaxes the pressure, allowing the chest to expand, and air to enter the lungs.

He presses and relaxes about 16 times a minute, just as in the natural act of breathing.

The advantage of this method is apparent.

The water runs out naturally, and tremendous pressure can be made on the chest. And one person can do it all. So don't wait for the physician or physician, but get down at once should the need arise, whether it is a drowning or a gas victim.

Miss Emma Stratton has resigned her position with the Buckley Brothers company and has returned to her home in Gloversville.

The following students took part in the recitation at the Normal school yesterday: Miss Elsie Corey, Miss Jessie Alden, Miss Jane Tuckley, Henry Sullivan and Miss Cassie Finch.

Stanley Mullins was selected as an orderly at the last Company G guard mount. The selection is made from the men having the neatest appearance, best kept equipment, etc.

One of the worst fires in the history of Oneonta visited that place on the morning of February 3. The buildings destroyed were the Hotel Holtham, a small wooden building owned by M. P. Sweet and used as a meat market by Signor Brothers, the Braut block, the Cone and White block, the Gregory block and a wooden structure in the rear of the Hotel Holtham, which itself narrowly escaped destruction.

February 11, 1894.

Jennie Elvira Jenks, recently returned from the New England conservatory, is prepared to teach piano, harmony and theory.

With the next regular meeting of the Delphic at the Normal school, the Delphic society will come into existence in its place.

Fifteen men have responded to the call for baseball candidates at the Normal school. Prof. Willard Beach has consented to manage the team but will not play in any games.

The knowledge that the subject of bridging the Main street crossing is being studied is becoming known. The members of the board of trustees in receipt of communications from various bridge companies offering to furnish the bridge at a very low price.

A night watchman, however, would insure against accidents at a moderate expense.

Resolutions of Respect.

In memory of Brother Edward C. Phillips, who died January 26, 1923.

Once again a Brother Mason, having completed the designs written for him on life's trestle board, has passed through the portals of eternity and entered the Grand Lodge of the New Jerusalem and hath received, as his reward, the white stone with the new name written thereon.

And whereas, the all-wise and merciful Master of the universe has called from labor to refreshment our beloved and respected brother.

And whereas, he having been a true and faithful brother of our beloved order, therefore be it.

Resolved, that S. Huyler Lake lodge, No. 10, of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York, do hereby express its loss, be framed in mourning for thirty days, and that we tender to the family of our deceased brother our sincere condolence in their deep affliction, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family.

Another Victim of Gay White Way

Pretty Louise Lawton, music student from Texas, was found murdered in her room apartment in uptown New York, near Broadway. Police are trying to solve the mystery of the girl's death, and believe robbery was the motive. The girl's apartment was ransacked. The robbers and murderers had bound the girl's hands and feet and gagged her. She suffocated to death. The case recalls the mysterious death of Dorothy King some months ago.

PRETTY FEBRUARY WEDDING

Miss Helena Huetner Becomes Bride On Saturday of LeRoy VanHousen.

A very pretty home wedding took place last Saturday at the home of Mrs. Mary Huetner, 17 Luther street, this city, when her daughter, Helena, became the bride of LeRoy VanHousen, of 29 Prospect street, on her mother's thirty-seventh wedding anniversary.

After the singing of a solo, "Precious Love," by Miss Ann Waters, and promptly on the stroke of twelve, the bride entered on the arm of her mother, to the strains of the Lutheran Wedding march, and before a large company of friends and relatives the happy couple were united in marriage by the bride's pastor, Rev. A. R. Skinner, of the United Presbyterian church of this city, amid a shower of palms and cut flowers.

The bride wore a becoming gown of white satin, and carried a bouquet of roses. Her veil being caught with orange blossoms. She was attended by Miss Helen MacNeil, of Leonia, New Jersey, who was attired in orchid georgette, and carried yellow roses. The groom, who is a popular trainman in the D. & H.

service, had for his best man E. H. Cotton of Syracuse.

Immediately following the ceremony a delicious wedding breakfast was served under the direction of Mrs. Lottie Castline, assisted by Mrs. Florence Nye, Miss Florence Waugh, Miss Susan Foster and Miss Nina Hodge, after which the young people took the afternoon train, for a brief wedding trip to New York. Upon their return they will make their home at 17 Luther street.

Among the guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. William Green of Schenectady, Mr. Gladys Crow of Kingston, Miss Nina Hodge of Waton, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hamm of DuPont, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Bogart of Birmingham.

The young people were the recipients of many valuable gifts of money, silver, cut glass and china, testifying to the esteem in which they are held, and their many friends wish for them a long and happy life.

WOODROW WILSON

and bitter debate which swelled in volume until it included the whole country. Eventually the treaty was born. The full of resourcefulness, the President carried his course to the triumph of the whole country. What the outcome might have been if his health had been spared nobody knows. But he was wounded in the conflict and fell on the field. His sword dropped from his hand, the pen fell from his hand. He put up a marvelous fight to regain his health, but he was wounded unto death. The tragedy touched the hearts of friends and foes and all united in paying tribute to the man.

Wilson Not Perfect.

Of course, Mr. Wilson was not perfect. He fell into more than one error. He made some mistakes. He was unable to compromise. He himself said he had a one-track mind. He loved men better than he understood them. He could not make allowances for the human condition. But the best of us make mistakes. Some of us are perfect. There are no infallible leaders, no impeccable souls. But now that he has completed the span of his earthly life we may be able to form a more just conception of this great personality.

"Some have called him cold and frigid. He was reserved, even shy at times. In his later days he became stern and austere. But he was not cold. He possessed a warm heart. He did not effervesce or sparkle or dribble, as his secretary has said. He was not usually emotional but his heart was in the right place and his sympathy for his fellow men was broad and deep.

"He was high minded. He possessed a noble soul. He showed an unflinching courage. He was an intellectual. He loved to dwell in the abstract. He was a chief among savants. But he was not a mere theorist. He possessed a practical mind. He had a wonderful power of expression. He was a master of the English tongue, as all his state papers testify. He was a forceful speaker. He was a man of tireless energy. He threw his whole soul into anything he undertook.

"His will was inflexible. Nothing could turn him from his course when he believed he was right. You could bind him, but you could not break him. His courage was indomitable. He was sensitive to criticism but he was unafraid. He never knew fear. Nothing could daunt him. He had an heroic soul.

Great Faith in Common People.

"Then there was his faith in the common people. He never lost that in his darkest hours. He trusted them as did Thomas Jefferson, or Abraham Lincoln. His sense of personal responsibility was very great and he did not possess the gift of shifting it to other shoulders. It weighed him down to the ground. He was a patriot. He lived and died for the good of the country as he conceived it and at the same time as was an internationalist, striving for the welfare of all mankind.

He possessed a sincerity of purpose that even his worst enemies could admit. He was a prophet, not a politician. He did not keep his hand to the ground but he held his hand to the light whence came his vision. And he caused the vision, and he caused the vision, and he caused the vision. Instead of arms and battles, a world court. Instead of war and bloodshed, orphans' walls and widows' tears, the means of human betterment and the growth of countless dead, international goodwill and brotherhood became the goal. And greater than this, an indomitable hope—faith—that this vision, barring human weakness, might be ultimately realized.

History Will Take Care of Fame.

"As to his future fame, we need not worry. It is too soon to assign him his proper niche in the world's temple of fame or his true place among the immortals. History will take care of that. But this much we know that when the partisan feelings shall have been forgotten and the story of the world's struggle shall be placed on the pages of history, this man must occupy a conspicuous place.

"And if the vision for the realization of which he gave his life shall turn out to be only a dream, his name will be associated with one of the most beautiful dreams ever conceived by the mind of man. But if on some good day in the years to come it shall reach fruition, as an increasing multitude in this and other lands devoutly pray and fondly believe, then shot through its very warp and woof, in threads of gold, shall be found the name of Woodrow Wilson. advt 6t

He no longer belongs to his family alone, nor to his friends alone—not even to his country alone. He now belongs to us all."

Ireland to Adopt Radio.

(By the Associated Press)

Dublin, Feb. 10. — Ireland is as yet without established radio broadcasting, and all listening-in is done against the prohibition of the government. But this condition soon will be changed, for the postmaster-general has decided upon a method of broadcasting control and a group of Irish firms have agreed to work the scheme together.

There is to be a main station at Dublin. Radio sets will be imported, and manufactured locally. The license for an amateur will cost $5.00; hotels and restaurants will pay $25.00. News, music and advertising will be distributed.

RADIO ADDRESS BY COOLIDGE

Station WJZ Will Broadcast Lincoln's Birthday Speech, Tuesday Evening.

For the second time the radio public will have the opportunity of hearing an address by the Chief Executive when President Coolidge's speech to the National Republican club is broadcast next Tuesday (tomorrow) evening.

This address, to be given at the annual Lincoln dinner of the National Republican club, on February 12th, will be broadcast by Station WJZ of the Radio Corporation of America directly from the main ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. Station WJZ will commence broadcasting the proceedings of the dinner at 9 o'clock, and the President's address, as well as that of United States Senator Wadsworth, will probably be delivered between the hours of 9 and 10:30.

Coughing only aggravates a cough

Control coughing—the first step in curing a cough.

Coughs are frequently due merely to irritation caused by a congested condition of throat and lung tissue. Persistent hacking will then only increase the congestion and continue the cough indefinitely. Such coughs can and should be stopped at once because they are a futile waste of strength. Dr. King's New Discovery checks coughing quickly and without any bad after-effects. It quiets violent throat and lung spasms and gives the congestion a chance to clear away. It has an agreeable taste. All druggists.
